1. From the home page, you will be able to see the weakest topics for your class. Clicking on View All Topics or clicking on the Performance tab on the left will allow you to view overall topic performance.

2. At the top of the page, you will see a section that says “What are the mastery levels?” Clicking on this will expand to reveal explanation of the three different Mastery levels in Elsevier Adaptive Quizzing.
3. If you have access to more than one question set, you can choose your desired course from the drop down box. On the right, you can choose the topic set you would like to view.

4. EAQ will default to allowing you to see the performance for the whole class, but you also have the option to select one or more students from your class to review.

5. You will be able to sort by highest or lowest performing topic. You will be able to see how many students have viewed this topic as well as the number of students at each level. You will also be able to see the number of questions seen, as well as the class average on this topic.
6. To drill down to see individual student performance on any topic, click the arrow in the upper right portion of the topic. This will expand so that you can view the mastery level of each individual student on that particular topic, along with how many questions each student has taken on that topic.
